WirelessU Work Samples

Presenter Training

Introduction presents a scenario that is revisited in the summary.

Key elements of every Wireless U course included the Learning on WirelessU, Welcome, and Survey

Persistent Table of Contents

41-presenter Preview (created 5/9/2004 10:23:42 PM) - Microsoft Internet Explorer

File Edit View Favorites Tools Help   Send

Back • ⬤ ▪ Search ⭐ Favorites Media ⬤ • • • • • • • •

Address C:\Docent\41-presenter.pre\PREVIEW.HTML   ⟶ Go   Links »

Presenter Training

Learning on WirelessU
Course List

Welcome

Introduction

Unit 1: Roles and Responsibilities of the Presenter and Wireless University

Unit 2: Components of an instructionally sound presentation

Unit 3: Things to consider when presenting to a remote (mixed) audience

Summary

Resources

Survey

Unit 1: Roles and Responsibilities of the Presenter and Wireless University

Unit 1: Roles and Responsibilities of the Presenter and Wireless University

Preparing a training session involves a lot of teamwork between the Presenter(s) and the Wireless University. The presenter has some responsibilities, while the Wireless University has other responsibilities. A number of responsibilities are shared between both parties.

Click each of the items in the first column of the table below to learn about the Roles and Responsibilities of both the Presenter and Wireless University.

Links to popup windows that provide definitions

Roles/Responsibilities	Presenter	Wireless University
1. Conduct audience analysis		✓
2. Identify presentation objectives	✓	✓

My Computer

🏁 start   Yahoo! Messenger …   Online Learning at …   41-presenter Previe…   Docent Outliner - 4…   Microsoft PowerPoi…   10:26 PM

The Summary revisits the original scenario. Popup definitions are used again to allow users to refer to the definitions without leaving the main instructional screen. Popups were used heavily throughout this course to minimize the number of screens a user would need to visit. It also allowed users to lookup only those definitions that were unfamiliar.